THE FULTON CHURCH. History of This Christian Enterprise Now Prominently Before the Public.

WHAT LED TO THE DIVISION. Mr. Daugherty's Version of

J. W. Daugherty, whose withgrawal from Fulton Baptist church last Wednesday has been, and is now, the chief topic of conversation in the East End of the city, was seen yesterday by a Dispatch reporter, to whom he gave a full account of the causes which led erty said he had preached the doctrine of sanctification from the time he first took charge of the church. Some of those who were now opposed to his views on that subject had themselves professed sanctification. In regard to his ideas

Although Mr. Daugherty's school fahaving been ordained in the Court-Street Baptiat church, Portsmouth, Va., Rev. A. E. Owen, D. D., pastor, in September, 1839. From boyhood until entering the ministry Mr. Leugherty was enguged in mercantile business in Portsmouth, a period of eighteen years. In 1839 he was appointed as a missionary by the Court-Street church, and in a few months organized the Calvary and South-Street churches in that city. This work grew rapidly, and the South-Street church engaged him for all his time. These churches were never any expense to the denomination; but were both contributors from the start.

s to scriptural communion, many of the very leaders of the faction who took issue with him had expressed themselves, he said, in favor of open communion. The pastor said the opposition to him was more the result of personal feeling was more the result of personal feeling than it was of any religious belief by those who remained in the church.

OPLIAIN OF THE MOVEMENT.

ORIGIN OF THE MOVEMENT.

"The religious movement which has come to the present condition of things," said Mr. Daugherty, "began with a proposition to wait upon the Lord in a tendays' prayer-meeting. This was begun while I was absent for two weeks, preaching at the First Baptist church at Newport News, about the 1st of last October, and has continued ever since. During this time there has been occasional preaching by myself, Rev. Ro. W. Webb. of Norfolk, and Mr. and Mrs. Young, of New York; but it has been chiefly a protracted prayer-meeting on the part of the church.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH. ORIGIN OF THE MOVEMENT.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. A. E. Dickinson was seen and asked to state something as to the his-tory of Fulton Baptist church: "The said he, "out of which the Fulton Baptist church finally came, was destroyed by fire during the war, and nothing was done towards rebuilding until some years later, say in 1887, when H. W. Tyler, Esq., who owned much of Rocketts, offered a lot on which to build, provided I would beg the money with which to pay for the church. Ex-Aiderman William H. Williams, of Church Hill, contracted to put up the building for about $1.890. That amount was raised, and the church dedicated free of debt. The last $500 of the $1.890 I raised in the Tremont Temple. Boston, Mass., at a great massameting of the Baptist Publication and Missionary societies. The services had Missionary societies and the church services had Missionary societies. The services had Missionary societies. The services had Missionary societies and the church services had Missionary societies. The services had Missionary societies and the church services had Missionary societies. The serv Baptist church-house in Rocketts, meeting of the Baptist Publication and Missionary societies. The services had been protracted to almost midnight, when I arose and asked that I be given five minutes in which to raise $500 for the Fulton church. Mr. William Bucknell, of Philadelphia, was presiding. He said; 'At this late hour we can't spare you five minutes, but I will be one of five, however, to give you $100 apiece if you don't ask to speak.' In less than five minutes the $100 came from five brethren, and I was happy.

THE SEVERAL PASTORS. The first pastor of Fulton church, "The first pastor of Fulton church," Dr. Dickinson continued, "was Rev. G.
T. Wallace, He was followed by Rev.
G. T. Kincannon, D. D., now of Medford county. He was followed by Rev.
H. G. Crens, now of Hallfax, and Rev.
C. A. G. Thomas, now of Fayetteville,
N. C., came after him. Rev. Theodore whitheld, D. D., succeeded Mr. Thomas, and then came the brother who has within the few days past resigned the pastoral care of the church. I have known this church through all its history, and his church through all its history, and have never known a more peaceful and wing church. In a little while I think here good people will get together and e greatly bleased. I would not wish he easier job than to raise a few thouan easier job than to raise a few thou-sand dollars with which to finish the Fulton church, which is a handsome brick structure, commodious, well ar-ranged, and desirably located. The se-vere ordeal through which this church is passing will win for it the heart and parse of the Richmond Baptists. Dr. Wittfield was considered one of the Vhittleld was considered one of the ablest preachers in this city, and the when he was its pastor. All of Fulton, I might almost affirm, went into mourn-ing when he died. The names of some of our most able and cloquent Haptist preachers are being mentioned in con-nection with the Fulton pastorate. There is a great future for this church, I think."

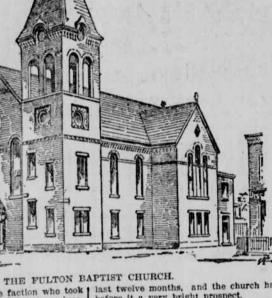

Among those who are spoken of as likely to be called to fill the pulpit of the church made vacant by Mr. Daugherty's withdrawal is Rev. C. A. G. Thomas, who now has a charge at Fayetteville, N. C.

REV. MR. DAUGHERTY'S CAREER. Rev. John W. Daugherty, who until a few days ago was pastor of the church, is a native of Virginia, and was born in Williamsburg on the 12th of January, 1856. His parents were Captain John Fenton Daugherty, of Salem, N. J., and Miss Lucy Bassett, of James City coun-ty. Va., His father died in Habana, Cuba, in 1851, and his mother still lives in Williamsburg.

Aithough Mr. Daugherty's school fa-cilities were very poor, he has been a very hard student all his life, and at the age of 13 translated Caesar without a teacher. His chief study for many years has been confined to the Scriptures and theology. Mr. Daugherty has, however, been in the ministry only a few years, having been ordained in the Court-Street Fantist church. Portsmouth, Va. Rev.

to the denomination; but were both contributors from the start.

These were his only pastorates before he was called by the Fulton Baptist church. After he came here his work increased very much. Frequently the week-night prayer-meetings numbered from three to four hundred. The Sunday school has exceeded six hundred in attendance, and about two hundred persons have united with the church in the country, and one or two from abroad.

The meeting of the Deep-Run Hunt

Club yesterday was a most enjoyable event. The riders assembled at the kennels at 320 o'clock. A good field was in attendance, in anticipation of starting a fox. In this the frolickers were not disappointed. Half an hour after the chase appointed. Haif an hour after the chase commenced the hounds raised Reynard from his lair, and were soon hot upon his track. The red-thil proved a hard animal to keep up with, and tested the mettle of hounds, horses, and riders. After a run of a couple of hours the fox was run to earth in the neighborhood of Hewlett's, on the Chesapeake and Ohlo railway. Out of a field of twenty riders who started not more than five were in at the death scene, and these were in at the death scene, and these were Mesers. Hancock, Davidson, Savage,

A Surprise Party.

There was a delightful surprise party given at the residence of Mr. Charles Clinely Friday night. Games were in-dulged in until a late hour, when refreshments were served. Among those present were the Misses Annie and Irene Clinely, Lona Starch, Mary Schilling, Nellie Jordan, Maggie Murphy, Gracle Mintree, Carrie Fischer, Bessie Timberlake; Messrs. H. Shaw, F. Fischer, J. Ford, L. Ford, H. Stone, S. Wintree, E. August, J. Carter, G. Carke, J. Ford, H. Stone, S. Win-free, B. August, J. Carter, G. Clarke, J. Holtzback. The happy crowd left at midnight. Those chaperoning the party were Mrs. Charles Clinely and Mrs. Eddie Beasley.

The Changes Desirable.

The Changes Desirable.

The Randolph Literary Society held its regular meeting in their room, at the Powhatan Club, last night. The subject for the debate of the evening, as has been previously announced, was "Resolved, That the proposed amendments to the city charter, as advocated by the Chamber of Commerce, would be beneficial." Meesrs. Glentworth Hall and James W. Gordon spoke on the affirmative, and Messrs. E. C. Folkes and P. St. George Barraud defended the negative side. The question was decided in tive side. The question was decided in favor of the affirmative.

The Hobos Still at Work.

The Hobos Still at Work.

And still the Hobos are at large.

The residents of south Third street are beginning to wonder if peace is never going to prevail in their neighborhood again. The fines of Justice Crutchfield, tegether with his threats to incarcerate the entire crowd in the Laurel Reformatory, seem to have had little effect on the determined gang. Ever since their recent appearance in the Police Court they have held closer together, and, in the estimation of the public, have been playing with the police. Three of the boys were reported yesterday by Officer Poiteaux.

There will be a meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy Tuesday, March 10th, at 12 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. N. V. Randolph. All persons having blanks will try and send or bring them on that day. Persons wishing blanks can get them at 512 east Grace. They must be returned to the same place.

The Owls Wide Awake

The Jolly Owl Club held a meeting last night at their club-rooms. Several new members were admitted. The regular meeting night of the club was changed from Saturday to Thursday. President John W. Starke made an address, and was presented with a handsome cane by Sergeant-st-Arms Stows.

MILLAIS A WORKER.

Royal Academy:

THACKERAY AS A PROPHET.

Royalty at One Time Froward on Sir John, But Now It Lauds Him—
His Famous Paintings—He Entertains on a Lavish Scale.

(Written for the Dispatch.)

When the author of "Vanity Fair" returned to London, in 1854, after a trip through Southern Europe, one of the first of his friends to call on him was an artist, named Milials. To him Thackeray said: "John, my boy, I met in Rome a versatile young dog, named Leighton, who will run you hard one of these days for the presidency of the Royal Academy. A few days ago Millais, now Sir John Everett Mallais, was elected as his successor. Thurs no man ever made a more true prophecy than when Thackeray, more than forty years ago, made his chance remark half in fun, about the Royal Academy.

The affairs of the Royal Academy.

The affairs of the Royal Academy have always been of importance to American artists, but now the interest is a more intimate one. Not long ago Edwin Austin Abbey was admitted to membership in the sacred circle. This regarded as a victory by American is regarded as a victory by American artists, as Mr. Abbey is purely American, and his admission promises to be a stepping-stone for his fellow-countrymen to gain a similar distinction.

The office of president of the Royal Academy is a peculiar one. Not only must the president be an artist of commanding note, and capable of protecting in every way the artistic body of which he is the head, but he must be a man of social distinction, a diplomat, a man of wealth, tact, and good comradeship.

were it not for the interference of the Queen. It has always been the custom for English royalty to be on terms of intimacy with the president of the Royal Academy, and of necessity with his family. The Queen's prejudice against divorced people is well known, Millais had married the divorced wife of John Ruskin. The great writer had secured a divorce on statutory grounds, hence the Queen's displeasure. Time has probably softened her prejudices in probably softened her prejudices in proposed, on the death of Lord Leighton.

A POPULAR MAN.

The new president is an artist of distinction; and, while all schools of art do not favor him, he is more popular than most men who have won fame and fortune in their chosen calling. Of splendid build, strength, and health, an engaging talker, a strong and virile personality, handsome of face, and charming of manner, bearing, his 67 years easily, Millais more nearly approximates the late Lord Leighton as the ideal head of Burlington House and the chief executive of Great Britain's official art institutions than any of his colleagues. His early career is unique. He was born at Southampton in 1829, and almost from his babyhood he showed signs of the future artist. At 10 years he drew astonishingly well, and at 12 he would compose intricate arrangements of figures and horses that would have been creditable suggestions for a man of 39. At 9 he won the silver medal of the Society of Arts with a drawing from the antique, and when Il years of age he became a student in the Royal Academy, where, at 14, he took the silver medal. Four years later he received the distinction of the gold medal, the greatest honor that the school can bestow.

He was an exhibitor at the Royal Academy. He was an exhibitor at the Royal Acadcan bestow.

He was an exhibitor at the Royal Academy before he was out of his teens, and as a lad, in connection with Dante G. Rossetti, Holman Hunt, and others—there were seven in all—he helped to found the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, a curious organization, whose motto was "Truth," and whose aim was to generalize nothing, but paint the detail of everything, a plan, by the way, that resulted in anything but the truth, for giving the same importance to everything and painting distant objects with the same fidelity that was bestowed upon those in the immediate foreground, the pictures lost entirely the qualities of air, perspective, and relation, ending in a confused mass of little things, and having none of the larger attributes of great art.

ending in a confused mass or intle things, and having none of the larger attributes of great art.

It was during this period that Millals produced his "Christ in the House of His Parents," a picture that attracted much attention, and which was shown thirty years later, in 1881, at an exhibition of his work held in London. In quick succession followed his "Huguenots," "Ophella," and "Order of Release," the last enjoying the distinction of being protected at the Royal Academy by a rail to keep back the crowds of people that thronged about it. After various and numerous portraits and compositions, in 1876 there came the famous landscape, "Chill October," a splendid performance, and wonderfully accurate study of Engish scenery, that added materially to the man's fame. The next year brought forth "Yes or No," a single figure of a woman standing before the fire, thoughtfully studying a letter, and which became instantly popular: in 1874 "The Northwest Passage," with the motto: "It can be done, and England thail de it."

One night last week thieves entered the premises of Mr. E. Redford, on Lewis street, and made off with a fine set of carriage harness. There is no clue to the robbers.

Rumor has it that Mr. Thomas J. Enright and Mr. James Hartley will be candidates for the Common Council and Board of Aldermen, respectively.

The funeral of Mr. Christian Roscher, who died last Sunday morning, took place from St. Mary's German Catholic church last Monday. His illness was only of a week's duration, and during that time his sufferings were intense. The house was crowded with his friends who came to pay the last tribute of respect. Mr. Roscher was held in high esteem by all who knew him.

The Garden of Fashion

It is always left for one to lead. It is as natural to look to us for the newestand choicest-and best in SILKS and DRESS GOODS as to the east for the morning sun. And you never look in vain.

What an array of fashionable fabrics—fit for a queen—unfold to your inspec-tion here—this spring—now. It outdoes the efforts of thirty-odd seasons past. All the praises you have sung in our favor can be turned into one grand chorus of commendation, and the brilliant collection that is gathered together here de-serves it all. The like cannot be found elsewhere in the city. To see is to be charmed. To possess is to be delighted. Fashion will make its entree just a few days away. Easter is the budding time. Between now and then your preparations are to be made. Earlier-better the choice-and we do want you to select before a single "flower" is plucked.

To-morrow we show the largest line of New Spring Silks we have ever shown at one time. Our Mr. Fourqurean has spent the greater part of the past week in searching the New York market for the choicest patterns to be found, and the result of his labors will be seen here to-morrow. It is an exquisite collection-a variety that cannot fail to please-and the prices are extremely low.
